

The Spirit Disciple

When It Rains It Pours

But The Sun Still Shines

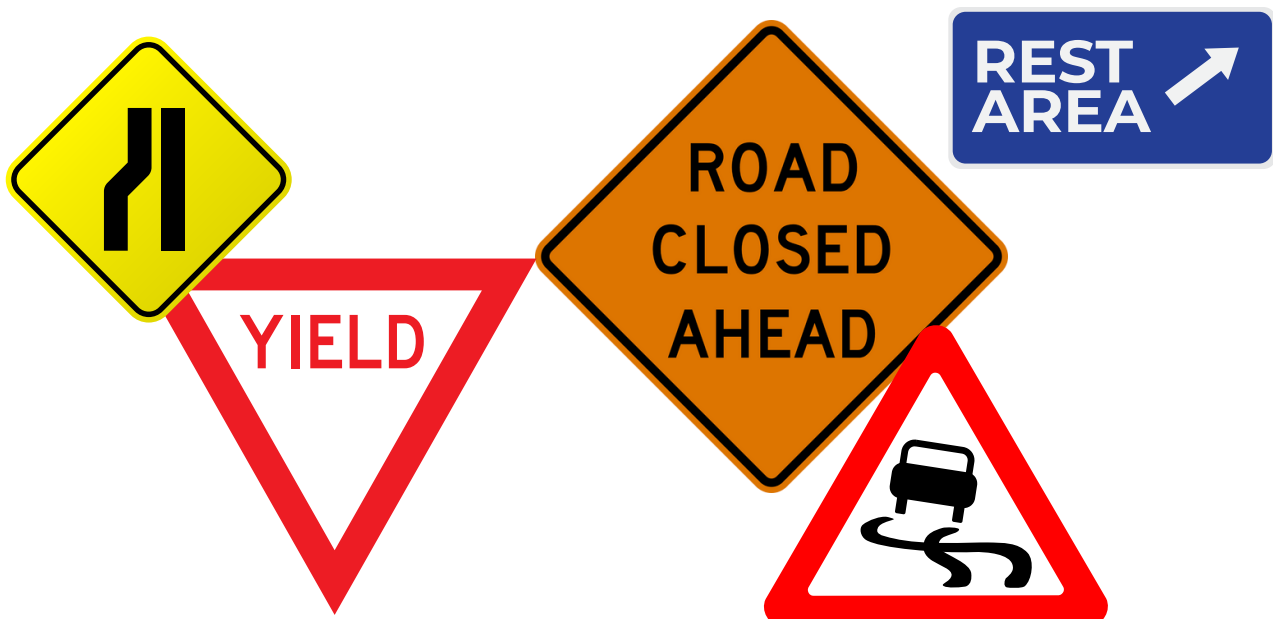

Have you ever paid attention to what happens when it rains? The thunder and lightning before a storm comes signifies the likelihood and severity of it. Can you predict when the showers are coming? There's a distinctive smell in the air before the rain comes that alerts us to the chance of it beginning to fall from the sky. Well, life is the same way. If we pay attention, we frequently get signs from the Spirit before our circumstances will take a turn in life. These inclinations are there to prepare us for what's to come. If you begin to pick up on the prophecies of the Spirit within, you can prepare yourself for the unforeseen moments around the corner.

Sit back and reflect on the consequences you've faced to see if you can dissect the warnings that came before your life took a turn that caused those tragedies. Keep a keen awareness of your senses to what indications pop up from the Spirit before occurrences transform into reality after finishing this book. With these concepts, bad situations may cease, or you will begin to change your perspective and realize the rain may be your blessing. "As it is written, 'The LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace' (Exodus 14:14, KJV)." Amen.

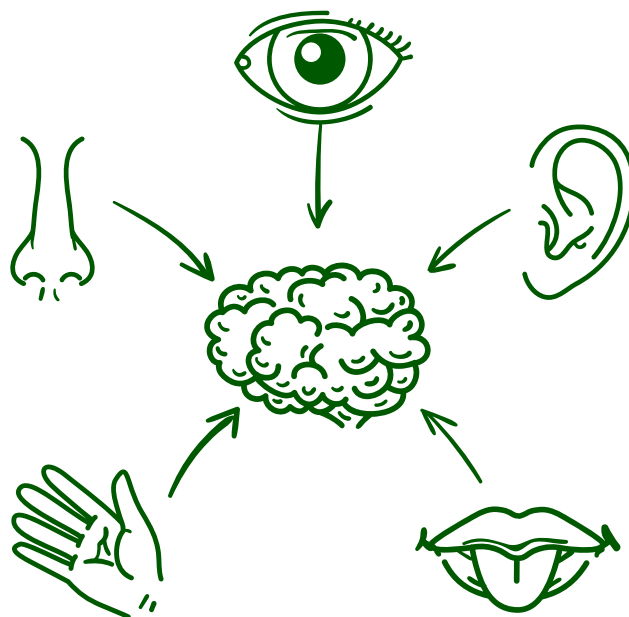

The Signs

At times, we may overlook the subtle signs from God due to our disconnection from the Spirit. When we operate from a place of unconsciousness, we tend to rely on our limited human perspective, which may lead us astray from our true destiny. It's challenging to remain steadfast on our chosen path in life if we possess a closed-minded view. However, if we stay conscious and in tune with the Spirit within, we are given an advantage over any obstacles that come our way. The signs become clear and distinct, leaving no room for doubt or hesitation. We must remain open-minded and available to receive the guidance we need to reach our destiny. "As it's written, 'And let it be, when these signs are come unto thee, that thou do as occasion serve thee; for God is with thee.' (1 Samuel 10:7, KJV)." Indeed, by operating in the Spirit, we gain the necessary guidance to achieve our goals. Amen.

Observance

When it starts to rain, we look at the density of the drops, feel their strength, and determine how often they fall. Similarly, we must observe our lives and the situations we face. Watch and listen for signals from God before things become a reality. Pay attention to what you see, hear, smell, taste, and feel, as these senses can help predict what's to come. Our inner spirit receiving is the key to interpreting the world and communicating through these senses. We can better receive guidance and make wise decisions by aligning with the Spirit of God. Think of your inner voice as your officer, observing and reporting so that you can make informed resolutions. Therefore, let us remember the power of our inner voice and the accompanying senses. Paying attention to signals and being proactive is crucial to making wise decisions in life. Let us trust in the Lord and in ourselves to navigate whatever challenges come our way. "As it is written, 'In thee, O LORD, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion' (Psalms 71:1, KJV)." Amen.

In The Midst

Have you ever noticed how easily our minds gravitate toward negative thoughts? It's a common tendency that most of us have, unfortunately. But the thing is, this mindset applies to any situation we face in life. For instance, when it comes to rain, we plan our days around it to avoid any inconvenience it may bring. But if we could shift our perspective and view rain as a positive force, we could learn to appreciate its many benefits. Rain can water vegetation, wash away debris, and cleanse our air. Let's consider rain a blessing instead of associating it with bad times because when blessings rain down, they pour into our lives and create overflow.

Even if something terrible happens, it doesn't mean destruction is inevitable. It's all about how we react to the situation. Rather than dwelling on the negative aspects, we can take this time to reflect. Consider what we can learn from this experience, focus on the positive and seek improvement opportunities. During the rain, images in the puddles become unclear and muddy. When pools become still, they produce a mirrored effect where we start to notice reflections emerging from the water when we look closer, but finding the rainbow after the rain is the beauty. It's a symbol of hope and a reminder that even in the darkest times, there is light at the end of the tunnel.

In conclusion, it's essential to reflect on these wise words, "As it is written, 'Where there is no vision, the people perish: but he that keepeth the law, happy is he' (Proverbs 29:18, (KJV))" By focusing on the Word, thinking positively, and having a clear understanding of our divinity, we can overcome any obstacle that comes our way and find our happiness. Selah.

Evaporation

As one cycle of rain ends and a new one begins, similarly with life. It's important to remember that each exploration of life experiences conveys diversity and a chance to release prior troubles and move forward. Earthly water dissipates, but the "Living Water" never runs dry. Even if the previous life cycle was complex, the Spirit equips us with the wisdom and understanding to control our realities. When we maintain our connection with the Spirit, we become more aware of our conscience and use it to our advantage. We can control our perception of worldly circumstances by focusing on our spiritual outlook and receiving guidance from the Spirit. "As it is written, 'And when this cometh to pass, (lo, it will come,) then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them' (Ezekiel 33:33, KJV)." Speak to your circumstances with authority and conviction during prayer; they will evaporate by your command.

The Recycle

As we journey through life, we often encounter cycles of rain that arrive with their lessons and challenges. It is imperative to be mindful and observe the signs provided by the Spirit from the previous cycle and reflect on what worked and what didn't, providing us with spiritual insight. We must remember that every experience we encounter is an opportunity for growth and development within our spiritual journey. Committing to self-reflection and personal growth is essential to achieve our highest potential, especially if we need another go around. Being fully aware and prepared for the recycling process is crucial.

It is important to note that rain should symbolize blessings and not something to hold us back from achieving our goals, delivering an opportunity to learn and grow. "As it is written, 'I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly' (John 10:10, KJV)." With a positive mindset, we can confidently confront any change that comes our way and triumph over any obstacle with the intercession of the divine Spirit. Instead of perceiving patterns of defeat, look for the blessings to pour into your life abundantly.
